Train Ride

The Osceola & St Croix Valley Railway is a heritage railroad in Osceola, Wisconsin, owned jointly by the Osceola Historical Society and the Minnesota Transportation Museum. It operates on former Soo Line and Wisconsin Central trackage (now owned by the Canadian National Railway).

Originally operating out of Stillwater, Minnesota, the railway moved to Osceola in 1992, beginning operations in the St. Croix Valley that year. Operations are currently based out of the historic 1916 Soo Line depot, owned by the Osceola Historic Society and leased to the Minnesota Transportation Museum for its rail operations.

The route follows the St. Croix River valley on top of the river bluffs, slowly running down the grade to river level, crossing into Minnesota on the 1887 iron bridge at Cedar Bend, then on to Marine on St. Croix and back up the valley through William O'Brien State Park.
